BPX Business Process Experts Suite is capable of modeling all end-to-end management processes visually. Process standardization through process mapping and process intelligence to assist business organisations determine barriers to progression. It also supports the development of replica models of enhanced processes and guarantees that existing processes conform to the strategic plan of the business. These capabilities make the SAP Signavio an essential tool to many companies that seek to come up with ways of operational change and innovation to enhance their service delivery in the modern competitive markets.

Improving and changing business for improvement implies process re-engineering. However, it is more than tweaking existing processes; it means fundamentally redesigning processes. SAP Signavio gives an organization a clean insight into the extent of ongoing inefficiencies that allows for a reinvention of the organization.

In process mining, specific hidden bottlenecks are identified, and process intelligence helps teams to make decisions. In addition, tools such as LeanIX and WalkMe amplify the magnitude of change – on the process and architecture levels in addition to user acceptance.

Nikhil Agarwal, Founder of BPX, says, “Business process re-engineering is conclusively the mainframe of the transformation agenda. SAP Signavio benefits organizations’ value proposition by redesigning processes, improving performance, and addressing market issues effectively.”

BPX links its excellent experience in BPR projects with SAP Signavio to achieve quantifiable business outcomes for BPR initiatives. The firm makes sophisticated transformations easy with one click by connecting it with every business strategy possible to ensure that every organization in all sectors benefits from its tools.
