Adaptigent*

This collaboration combines Adaptigent's expertise in unlocking legacy systems to enable digital transformation with Africonology Solutions' specialization in the design and delivery of professional testing services. By merging their strengths, they will provide comprehensive solutions that empower African enterprises to modernize their IT infrastructures, enhance operational efficiency, and adapt to evolving market demands.

"We are excited to partner with Africonology Solutions to bring cutting-edge modernization solutions to the South African and broader African markets," said Steve Lopez,

Chief Executive Officer of Adaptigent. "Our solutions, which enable connecting and re-hosting trusted applications by accessing and/or rehosting cloud or on-premise systems including mainframes, combined with Africonology's deep understanding of the local landscape, will enable organizations to seamlessly integrate and modernize core systems with minimized risk and cost."

Africonology Solutions, known for its commitment to quality and innovation, sees this partnership as a significant step toward enhancing digital capabilities within the region. "Collaborating with Adaptigent allows us to offer our clients advanced tools to enhance legacy systems and adapt to the rapidly changing digital environment," said Mandla Mbonambi, Chief Executive Officer of Africonology Solutions. "Together, we are poised to drive meaningful digital transformation across various industries."

The partnership will focus on delivering solutions that address the unique challenges faced by African enterprises, including real-time access to data on legacy systems, enterprise data integration, and the development of modern customer experiences. By combining their expertise, Adaptigent and Africonology Solutions support businesses in continuously adapting and maintaining a competitive edge as they navigate new technological advancements.
