CLEST's mission strongly aligns with the SEAL code—promoting professionalism, trust, and personal excellence, while fostering stronger, more effective, and more cohesive teams.”

Retired Navy SEAL Stephen Barrett

CLEST approval is an official Arkansas state recognition of the courses' quality, relevance, and effectiveness. Many agencies prefer or even require CLEST-approved training for their officers, because this stamp of approval reassures organizations, particularly law enforcement agencies, that the training meets or exceeds the standards required for professional development within Arkansas.

CLEST-certified training is recognized across Arkansas, and certified courses typically count toward officers' required continuing education requirements. According to BSLG founder and CEO Stephen Barrett, who retired from the U.S. Navy SEALs as Command Master Chief, the highest-attainable enlisted leadership rank, “CLEST's mission strongly aligns with the SEAL code—promoting professionalism, trust, and personal excellence, while fostering stronger, more effective, and more cohesive teams. We're incredibly pleased to receive this approval and we're eager to provide this best-available training to law-enforcement officers as well as other professionals.”
