

Nomination of Meink as Next SECAF Emphasizes the Importance of a Strong United States Space Force

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO, UNITED STATES, January 18, 2025

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The Space Force Association \(SFA\) celebrates the nomination of Dr. Troy Meink as the next Secretary of the Air Force. Dr. Meink has proven himself as an expert who understands the criticality of the United States Space Force with his most recent experience as the Deputy Director of the National Reconnaissance Office.

“Our potential adversaries have been outpacing our capability and capacity recently in the space domain and it emphasizes the importance President Trump has for a strong USSF,” said SFA President & CEO Col. Bill Woolf. “The Space Force deserves more attention as we move to ensure freedom of action in the space domain for the United States, partners and allies. As we look to re-balance our military budget, based on the emerging threat, it is time to examine whether the USSF has the resources, in budget and manpower, it needs to execute its congressionally mandated mission to secure our Nation’s interests in, from, and to space. President Trump under his previous administration, with key policymakers, ensured the establishment of the USSF. He now can help ensure the United States stays at the forefront of the new space race.”
