Johnson's career began in the Air Force at age 17, where she honed her skills in structure and discipline. This military experience, combined with subsequent years spent in surgical technology and healthcare IT, uniquely positioned her to understand complex systems and to effectively teach others.

Her passion for teaching revealed itself while instructing in proprietary schools and community colleges, where she taught surgical technology. "Teaching gave me the skill of simplification," Johnson explains, "My goal was to reach the person who had the hardest time in the classroom." Her ability to break down complex processes has become a cornerstone of her consulting approach.

The Evolution of One11 Management Consulting Group

Founded with a mission to empower small business owners and healthcare professionals,

One11 Management Consulting Group has been instrumental in helping clients transform hobbies into successful enterprises. #### Upcoming Book Release

Following the success of her 2021 self-help journal, “A Journey for a Dream—Success Journal Revealing Your Infinite Light Being,” Johnson plans to release a second book in 2025, aimed at professionals aspiring to transition into consulting roles. Johnson anticipates a first-quarter launch, promising a comprehensive guide packed with insights drawn from her extensive industry experience.
