Neuroendocrine Tumors Emerging Drugs Profile

- RYZ101: RayzeBio, Inc.

RYZ101 is an investigational, targeted RPT designed to deliver a highly potent alpha-emitting radioisotope, Actinium-225 (Ac225), to solid tumors expressing SSTR2. RYZ101 leverages DOTATATE, a known binder and linker used in other radiopharmaceutical products. RYZ101 uses Ac225 instead of the Lu177 used in Lutathera and thus delivers hundreds of times more potency in cancer cell killing. The higher potency of RYZ101 can provide significant clinical benefit to patients. RYZ101 utilizes a proprietary and patent protected formulation. The drug is being developed for gastroenteropancreatic neuroendocrine tumor, pancreatic net, neuroendocrine tumors, extensive stage small cell lung cancer (ES-SCLC), and other tumors. Currently, the drug is in the Phase III stage of development to treat Neuroendocrine tumors.

- SVV-001: Seneca Therapeutics

SVV-001, an oncolytic virus of the genus Seneca in the Picornaviridae family. SVV-001 is characterized by its ability to replicate selectively in certain human tumor cells ("SVV-permissive cells"), namely those that express TEM8, the receptor of SVV. SVV-001 is non-pathogenic in humans and animals. SVV-001 and the Seneca genus was originally discovered in 2001 at Novartis Pharmaceuticals by Dr. Paul Hallenbeck. SVV-001 was further developed as a novel cancer therapeutic at Neotropix, Inc. SVV-001 has been extensively tested in over 30 non-clinical cancer models, including immunotherapeutic settings, and in three clinical trials for various solid cancer namely neuroendocrine tumors such as carcinoids, small cell lung cancer and a variety of pediatric cancers. These trials confirmed the safety of intravenous dosing of SVV-001 and safety along with suggestions of significant clinical benefit. Currently the drug is in Phase II stage of Clinical trial evaluation for the treatment of Neuroendocrine Tumors.

- Voyager-V1: Vyriad, Inc.

VSV-IFN β -NIS (Voyager V1; VV1) is derived from VSV, a bullet-shaped, negative-sense RNA virus with low human seroprevalence; it is engineered to replicate selectively in and kill human cancer cells. VV1 encodes hIFN β to increase antitumoral immune response and tumor specificity, plus the thyroidal sodium iodide symporter NIS to allow imaging of virus. VV1 is synergistic with different anti-PD-(L)1 antibodies in several tumor models. Currently the drug is in Phase I/II stage of Clinical trial evaluation for the treatment of Neuroendocrine Tumors.

- ADCT-701: ADC Therapeutics

ADCT-701 is an ADC composed of a humanized IgG1 antibody against human DLK-1, site-specifically conjugated using Glycoconnect technology to PL1601, which contains a valine-alanine cleavable linker and the PBD dimer cytotoxin SG3199. In vitro, ADCT-701 demonstrated potent cytotoxicity in a panel of human cancer cell lines of different origin and levels of DLK-1, while its potency was strongly reduced in DLK-1-negative cell lines. In vivo, ADCT-701 showed potent anti-tumor activity in the DLK1-expressing neuroblastoma-derived SK-N-FI xenograft in which a single dose of ADCT-701 at 0.5 or 1 mg/kg showed dose-dependent anti-tumor activity compared to the vehicle- and isotype control ADC-treated mice. Currently the drug is in Phase I stage of Clinical trial evaluation for the treatment of Neuroendocrine Tumors.
