What Drives The hiberix Market Growth?

Now, the primary propeller for the hiberix market lies in the rising prevalence of haemophilus influenzae type B infection. A bacterial pathogen primarily affecting young children leads to severe conditions like meningitis, pneumonia, and epiglottitis, driving the demand for hiberix. Factors such as vaccine hesitancy, antibiotic resistance, and health disparities contribute to increased infection rates, thereby pushing the hiberix market growth. Hiberix actively immunizes patients against the bacteria, mitigating the risk of severe illnesses and thereby improving public health outcomes. These facts were validated by a report released by the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control in July 2024, addressing the recent surge in cases of invasive haemophilus influenzae disease.
