

New Tool Empowers Australian Businesses to Assess First Aid Needs

My First Aid Course Brisbane has launched an innovative tool designed to help businesses across Australia better understand their workplace first aid needs.

BRISBANE, QLD, AUSTRALIA, January 29, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- My First Aid Course Brisbane has launched an innovative tool designed to help businesses across Australia better understand their workplace first aid needs. The First Aid Staff Requirement Tool provides employers with a simple and effective way to calculate how many staff members should be trained in first aid, tailored to their specific workplace circumstances.

First Aid Tool.

Navigating workplace safety regulations can be overwhelming, and many businesses struggle to determine their first aid requirements. This user-friendly calculator breaks down complex guidelines into clear, actionable insights, saving time and simplifying decision-making. By inputting details like workplace size, industry type, and operational hours, businesses can get an instant estimate of their recommended first aid training needs.

“Unfortunately, too many businesses under-train their staff in first aid, leaving teams vulnerable in emergencies,” said

Jay Dee Mullins, Content Specialist at My First Aid Course Brisbane. “Our new tool cuts through the confusion. It’s designed to make understanding your first aid responsibilities simple and accessible, so more workplaces can take proactive steps to protect their people. Everyone deserves to feel confident in an emergency.” Not nearly enough Australians are trained in first aid, and My First Aid Course Brisbane is working to close this gap.

The launch of the First Aid Staff Requirement Tool complements their flexible training options, which include majority-online learning paired with shorter, practical, in-person sessions to accommodate busy schedules. Employers are encouraged to act now by visiting the First Aid Staff Requirement Tool here.

The tool is free to use and provides instant, tailored insights to help businesses make informed decisions.
