GENEVA, SWITZERLAND, January 29, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- SGS, the world's leading testing, inspection and certification company, is proud to announce it is a sponsor at the 2025 Annual Meeting and Training Symposium organized by the International Consumer Product Health and Safety Organization (ICPHSO).

This year's theme, 'Fostering Bridges Within the Product Safety Community,' will unite regulators and key industry operators from around the globe. The event provides a collaborative space to exchange consumer product safety insights, share best practices and address emerging challenges.

SGS will be at Booth #17 throughout the event, with a multidisciplinary team from Hardlines, Connectivity and Softlines ready to answer questions about regulations, testing and certification. In addition, two of SGS's experts will moderate insightful sessions on key industry topics.

On February 17, 2025, Michael Richardson, Sustainability Manager, will facilitate the breakout session, 'The Growing Impact of Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) Regulations on Products and Packaging.' This will address several points, including the significance of EPR, its impact on the consumer products industry, and the practical steps available to businesses seeking compliance.

Dr. Min Zhu, Senior Director, Technical Services and Operations, Softlines, will then moderate a plenary session on February 19, 2025, covering the US Consumer Products Safety Commission's (CPSC) new electronic filing (eFiling) requirements. Topics covered will include the status of the new rules and the solutions offered by SGS.
