What Is Driving the Growth of the Sterilization Equipment Market?

The increasing prevalence of hospital-acquired infections (HAIs) is expected to play a major role in the growth of the sterilization equipment market in the future. HAIs are infections that develop in a hospital setting, often contracted by patients during their stay, and are a leading cause of illness and death worldwide. These infections include bloodstream infections from central lines, urinary tract infections from catheters, and pneumonia from ventilators. The rising number of HAIs will drive the demand for more sterilization equipment in healthcare facilities.
