marketing strategies, and PR exposure designed to elevate their careers and deepen their connections within the communities they serve. To further bolster agents’ success, revolv has collaborated with Belmont City Press LLC, a Boston-based PR and marketing agency, to provide specialized marketing and media training.

revolv's coaching initiative is built around a structured program that supports agents with personalized training on lead generation, branding, pipeline management, social media marketing, and high-exposure PR strategies. Through weekly group coaching sessions, agents will refine their expertise in cold calling, networking, digital branding, and effective sales techniques, ensuring they stand out in competitive markets. Weekly personalized one-on-one sessions will provide targeted guidance tailored to each agent’s unique business needs, allowing for in-depth discussions on strategy, challenges, and growth opportunities. These individualized meetings ensure that agents receive customized support to enhance their strengths, address specific business roadblocks, and accelerate their success.

Agents will learn how to leverage press releases, social media, podcasting, and SEO strategies to grow their personal brand, secure media features, and establish themselves as local market leaders. Depending on their individual needs and where they are in their business and marketing efforts, agents can take advantage of Belmont City Press's suite of opportunities. These include becoming a published author to highlight their expertise, solidify themselves as the go-to expert in real estate and using their book as a key to open doors for speaking engagements and business discussions. Additionally, agents can craft their signature talks as a means of gaining exposure and attracting and informing their ideal clients, prepare for podcast guest appearances to capitalize on media opportunities, and educate the public on revolv's deep market advantages. Agents interested in expanding their reach can also host their own podcast sessions, featuring local business owners, community members, and industry-specific professionals who are deeply invested in the growth and success of the community. These conversations will highlight the benefits of living in the towns revolv serves, foster stronger local connections, and reinforce the agents' authority in the industry.

"revolv is taking an incredibly forward-thinking approach by positioning their agents as industry experts," said Red Hilton, Founder of Belmont City Press LLC. "Marketing is no longer just about selling a service; it's about storytelling, education, and establishing credibility. revolv's commitment to providing agents with publishing, speaking, and PR opportunities expands the meaning of marketing—benefiting both the agents and the clients they serve."

A key component of revolv's mission is fostering deeper community relationships by showcasing the stories of long-time residents and local businesses. Through social media and podcast
