Located on the picturesque slopes of the Big Island, Ahualoa Family Farms is a family-run operation dedicated to cultivating macadamia nuts of exceptional quality. The farm uses sustainable farming practices to ensure each nut is harvested with care, preserving the rich flavor and nutritional value that make Hawaiian macadamia nuts so coveted.

“From Our Family to Yours”

“At Ahualoa Family Farms, we believe in sharing the authentic taste of Hawaii,” said Chad Cleveland, Owner of Ahualoa Family Farms. “Each macadamia nut we grow is a testament to our passion for farming and our dedication to providing customers with a product they can enjoy and feel good about.”

Ahualoa Family Farms offers a variety of macadamia nut products, including:

- Raw and Roasted Macadamia Nuts – Perfect for snacking or cooking, available in lightly salted or unsalted options.

- Flavored Macadamia Nuts – Featuring unique Hawaiian-inspired flavors such as honey roasted, chili lime, and Kona coffee.

- Macadamia Nut Butters – Smooth, creamy, and ideal for spreading or incorporating into recipes.

In addition to its premium product lineup, the farm takes pride in educating visitors about sustainable farming and the importance of supporting local agriculture. Visitors to Ahualoa Family Farms can enjoy farm tours, learn about the macadamia nut harvesting process, and taste the fresh, buttery flavor that sets their nuts apart.

Sustainably Grown, Locally Loved
Ahualoa Family Farms prioritizes environmental stewardship by implementing eco-friendly practices such as water conservation, composting, and maintaining the natural biodiversity of their orchards. These efforts not only ensure the farm's long-term viability but also contribute to preserving Hawaii's unique ecosystem.
