Analyzing the Latest Trends in Thermal Spray Coating Market

The disposable incomes of the middle-class population have increased gradually in the past few years in most developed and developing countries globally. As a result, the demand for high-end automobiles has also grown, thus contributing to the expansion of the thermal spray coating industry. Rise in adoption of high-performance ceramic coatings for automotive components to increase the vehicle's fuel efficiency has played an important role in the growth of the sector. Furthermore, various advantages offered by these paints, including resistance from corrosion, heat, and abrasion, have improved the revenue share of the market. Also, applicability of thermal spray coatings has increased in the aerospace and defense domain, enhancing the growth rate of the industry.

Industry Updates and Latest Advancements in the Sector

The advent of innovative thermal spray coatings like plasma coatings is one of the latest trends in the industry. Advancements in the field of nanotechnology have further opened new avenues for growth in the industry. Plasma coatings involve the use of small molecules, called monomers, that bond with polymers under specific conditions. These molecules, depending on the requirements and the type of the surface, help create hydrophilic and hydrophobic surfaces. Plasma coatings are widely used in consumer electronics, biomedical manufacturing, textile production, automotive, and aerospace industries.
