

AcroDocz Integrates with Clio to Provide AI-Powered Medical Summaries for Personal Injury Law Firms

Personal injury attorneys can now access AI-powered medical chronologies and billing summaries within Clio, streamlining case preparation and review.

SYOSSET, NY, UNITED STATES, February 5, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- AcroDocz, a leading provider of AI-powered medical record analysis, is now integrated with Clio - the world's leading cloud-based legal technology platform. This integration allows personal injury law firms to seamlessly generate AcroDocz's medical chronology and billing summaries within Clio, helping attorneys manage complex medical data more efficiently.

Clio is designed to simplify law firm operations, enhance productivity, and drive revenue growth—all from one central hub. Trusted by over 150,000 legal professionals across more than 130 countries and endorsed by 100+ bar associations and legal societies, Clio stands out for its industry-leading security, 24/5 customer support, and extensive app ecosystem. The addition of AcroDocz to Clio's ecosystem marks an exciting new chapter in legal technology innovation.

With AcroDocz, legal professionals can instantly access AI-powered medical summaries and billing reports, reducing the time spent on manual reviews. Designed specifically for personal injury firms, these tools provide clear, concise insights into medical records and bills, supporting case strategy and client advocacy.

"AcroDocz was founded to address a critical gap in the legal industry—transforming complex medical data into actionable insights," said Sam Karpel, Co-Founder of AcroDocz. "As an attorney, I've seen firsthand how overwhelming medical records and bills can be. Our integration with Clio allows us to deliver the tools attorneys need to streamline their workflows and focus on their clients."

AcroDocz now integrates with Clio, enabling users to generate medical chronologies and billing summaries directly within their case files. By simplifying access to key medical insights, this collaboration helps law firms reduce administrative burdens, refine case strategies, and focus more on client advocacy.

"Our partnership with AcroDocz enhances how law firms access and manage key medical insights within Clio. By integrating medical chronologies and billing summaries directly into case files, we're streamlining workflows, reducing administrative burdens, and empowering firms to focus on what matters most—client advocacy” said Harsha Chandra Shekar, VP of Business Development at Clio.

AcroDocz's collaboration with Clio empowers personal injury law firms with AI-powered medical chronologies and billing summaries, streamlining case preparation and improving efficiency. By providing seamless access to critical medical insights within Clio, this collaboration enables attorneys to focus on building stronger cases and delivering better outcomes for their clients.
