businesses in rural areas struggle to compete with larger brands that dominate search results. White Mountains Directory bridges this gap, providing businesses with real tools to engage customers, improve visibility, and drive measurable results.

“If a customer can't find your business online—or worse, if what they find doesn't reflect who you are—you're losing sales before they even step through your door,” says Amanda McKeen, founder of White Mountains Directory and Clear View Advantage. “Traditional directories just list businesses. White Mountains Directory gives business owners the power to control their image, engage customers, and track their success—all in one platform.”

Unlike outdated directories or social media pages that business owners struggle to keep updated, White Mountains Directory offers real marketing tools to help businesses stand out in an increasingly digital world. Business owners have full control over their business profiles, allowing them to update their listings, add promotions, and share updates whenever they want—without waiting for approvals. Each listing is also SEO-optimized, ensuring businesses appear where customers are already searching for businesses in Northern New Hampshire.

The platform enhances direct customer engagement with clickable links, customer reviews, and real-time updates that make it easy for potential customers to connect. Business owners can also take advantage of unlimited growth opportunities by posting events, promotions, and articles to keep their brand top-of-mind. To further help businesses succeed, White Mountains Directory provides built-in performance analytics so business owners can track their visibility and engagement, making it easier to adjust marketing strategies for better results. Summit Members receive additional expert marketing support, including personalized consultations to maximize their digital presence and reputation management efforts.

"Unlike Google My Business or traditional chambers that only offer static listings, White Mountains Directory provides a complete marketing toolset, helping businesses connect with their audience in a meaningful way," McKeen explains.

Beyond its directory features, White Mountains Directory serves as a full-scale resource hub for entrepreneurs and small business owners in Northern New Hampshire. The platform provides clear messaging guides to help businesses effectively communicate what they do so customers instantly "get it." Resources are also available to help businesses improve their visibility, stand out in a crowded market, and craft a strong online presence that attracts the right audience.

To ensure businesses make the most of their directory listing, the platform includes profile optimization guides with step-by-step instructions for maximizing visibility and engagement. Additionally, White Mountains Directory features a monthly newsletter that is accessible to everyone, not just subscribers. Unlike traditional newsletters that get buried in email inboxes, this one lives directly on the site, making it available anytime to keep businesses informed on industry trends, marketing strategies, and community updates.

"I wanted to create an all-inclusive resource that anyone can use—even nonpaying members," says McKeen. "Help shouldn't be limited to hefty annual subscriptions or outdated resources. More and more people are moving to the North Country and starting businesses to create a lifestyle for themselves. They deserve real, modern, and actionable support to thrive in rural areas."

McKeen is also the founder of Clear View Advantage, a business consulting firm whose sole mission is to empower businesses to thrive. Creating White Mountains Directory was a natural extension of her passion for helping businesses succeed and ensuring local entrepreneurs have access to the right tools, strategies, and support—without unnecessary barriers.
