“The Dr. Paul Show” provides an unfiltered, real-world look at how Dr. Corona’s innovative approach to psychiatry and primary care transforms the lives of his patients. Each episode features real patients sharing their journeys, from their initial visit to the progress they have made using The Corona Protocol.

With over 30 years of experience as a family physician, Dr. Corona has spent his career refining a unique, holistic approach to treating both mood and physical disorders together. His expertise extends beyond traditional psychiatric conditions such as depression, anxiety, bipolar disorder, and ADD—he also treats chronic headaches, neck and back pain, fibromyalgia, fatigue, insomnia, and irritable bowel syndrome, all of which can be linked to underlying mood imbalances.

“I combine primary care and psychiatry in unique and revolutionary ways in order to best help my patients,” says Dr. Corona. “This show provides an inside look at how the right medical approach can change lives.”

With episodes available now and more in production, the show is designed for anyone who cares about their own health and wellness, as well as the well-being of their loved ones. In addition to the show, Dr. Corona’s acclaimed book, “The Corona Protocol”, is now available in audiobook format on Audible, expanding access to his life-changing medical insights.

“I want to ensure my book is accessible to everyone,” Dr. Corona explains. “Whether you prefer audio learning, have vision impairments, or enjoy listening while exercising or driving, this format allows more people to benefit from the principles of ‘The Corona Protocol.’”

With the launch of his new show and audiobook, Dr. Corona continues to push the boundaries of mental health care by educating the public on alternative approaches that challenge conventional psychiatry. His mission is clear: to help people achieve lasting wellness through a combination of primary care and psychiatry—an approach that is holistic, effective, and uniquely tailored to each individual.
