-- Relativity, a global legal technology company, today announced a new educational partnership with Doug Austin's eDiscovery Today, the only daily blog for electronic discovery, information governance, cybersecurity, data privacy and artificial intelligence trends, best practices and case law. This collaboration enables Relativity and eDiscovery Today to work together to educate industry professionals on eDiscovery technology, legal data intelligence and case law trends, as well as best practices for addressing today's legal technology challenges.

From its daily updates on eDiscovery law and technology to its State of the Industry report, eDiscovery Today is a leading go-to resource for lawyers, paralegals, and technologists in our field.”

David Horrigan, Discovery Counsel and Legal Education Director

Relativity will contribute thought leadership content to several of eDiscovery Today's educational initiatives including the annual State of the Industry Report, webinars and blog content to offer valuable insights into solving complex legal data challenges. With both eDiscovery Today and Relativity's deep expertise, this partnership represents a unique opportunity for legal professionals to stay ahead of the curve on the most pressing issues in the industry today.

“At Relativity, we've worked with Doug Austin for many years, and we're tremendously pleased to formalize our relationship with Doug and eDiscovery Today,” said David Horrigan, Discovery Counsel and Legal Education Director at Relativity. “From its daily updates on eDiscovery law and technology to its State of the Industry report, eDiscovery Today is a leading go-to resource for lawyers, paralegals, and technologists in our field. We're looking forward to contributing legal content and continuing to work with Doug covering eDiscovery case law and the latest research and developments in our field.”

“The legal, data and technology landscape has moved beyond a consistent state of evolution – it’s now in a constant state of disruption, which creates more challenges for legal teams than ever” said Doug Austin, Editor of eDiscovery Today. “Over the years, Relativity has demonstrated an ability to not only embrace the accelerating pace of change, but also to educate the industry on the impact of that change and I’m excited to work with the Relativity team to educate industry professionals on understanding technology and best practices to address these ever-changing disruptive trends!”
