envisioning a brighter Britain in 30 years' time, and addressing how to make this vision a reality. At its core is the 3-day national gathering which takes over the entire of the Eden Project in Cornwall, to embark on 200+ sessions, led by 600+ speakers.

As UK leaders return from discussing the global agenda at the World Economic Forum in Davos, the Market Open ceremony presented the ideal moment to launch the UK national agenda. The UK's largest shared agenda is constructed by hundreds of senior leaders and organisations, and is structured around four pivotal questions:

- What is the quality of life we want in Britain for the next thirty years?
- What qualities of place and planet do we need to achieve that quality of life?
- What qualities do we wish to see in a good economy and in the best of businesses and public sector organisations?
- What qualities do we want to express to the world, to help solve shared issues?

Curated around the Anthropy 14 key themes, the agenda provides a structured platform for future-focussed discussions, ensuring a holistic approach to shaping a prosperous, sustainable and equitable Britain.

Featuring Anthropy's Founder & Chairman, John O'Brien MBE, LSE plc CEO Dame Julia Hoggett DBE, and business leaders such as former TV 'Dragon' Piers Linney, Ofcom CEO Dame Melanie Dawes, Paul Edwards, Managing Director Lombard and Specialist Business at NatWest, Sarah Howard MBE, Chair at British Chambers of Commerce, Political Economist Will Hutton and Chair at RSA Sir Loyd Grossman CBE, the Market Open ceremony provides a glimpse of the calibre of leadership that will be attending Anthropy25.

At the event, Anthropy Founder and Chairman, John O'Brien MBE, formerly EMEA managing partner of Omnicom's ONE HUNDRED consortium states "While the London Stock Exchange deals in shares and bonds, convening people and capital... We at Anthropy deal in something just as valuable... We trade in ideas. We invest in optimism. That is why today marks the launch of the Anthropy25 national Agenda...and I can't think of a better place to introduce this vision than here, among those who understand what it means to create value. Real value is built in many ways, through financial capital, and also through social capital, cultural capital, natural capital, through the strength of our institutions and the ambition of our people."

As London Stock Exchange plc CEO Dame Julia Hoggett DBE, welcomed John O'Brien MBE to open the market, she stated, "We are delighted to welcome Anthropy to the London Stock Exchange to celebrate the launch of their Anthropy25 Agenda. Working in partnership to shape
