Jimmy Singh, the founder of CDLA

Criminal Defence Lawyers Australia® has 40 combined years of experience in the industry, with a proven track of success and a portfolio, showcasing small to high cases Australia-wide. At the helm of CDLA, stands Jimmy Singh, who has been practicing in Criminal Defence Law since 2009. Jimmy is known for his exceptional legal expertise in handling ANoM cases, one of the world's first FBI-run drug sting operations.

"My passion and drive to help people combined with my strong interest in always learning criminal law has been the driving force behind my success as a criminal defence lawyer which over the last 15 years has compounded," said Jimmy.

A Passion for Justice

The core mission of Criminal Defence Lawyers Australia® is to help individuals during their most difficult times. Jimmy added, "Helping people through the toughest and lowest time in their lives is one of the most rewarding acts a person can do."

He added, "People facing criminal charges who have to also navigate through the criminal justice system whilst also balancing their personal life commitments is extremely tough. We help with that from start to end of the case."

Whether it is guiding clients through the intricacies of the legal system or helping them manage their personal challenges along with the cases, CDLA provides an empathetic approach, which has earned the trust and admiration of their clients.

Client-Focused Approach

Criminal Defence Lawyers Australia® focuses highly on client centric and handles criminal cases only. This allows them to deliver an excellent representation and help their clients to achieve favorable outcomes for their clients.

CDLA further offers a fixed-fee structure to ensure their clients receive personalised attention and high-quality service without the uncertainty of billable hours. "As we do not work on billable hours, we are able to provide fixed fees for most cases, which allows us to be more focused on quality rather than quantity."

Strategic Case Preparation and Courtroom Excellence

At CDLA, preparation is not just part of their process, but the foundation of their success. CDLA lawyers believe that Criminal Law is a highly specialist area that requires extensive academic and practical knowledge. They employ an innovative approach of working backward, starting from the desired outcome, analysing evidence and its deficiencies, and building a strong defence strategy.

They also leverage legal tools such as subpoenas to uncover critical evidence that may be missed by the prosecution—which gives their clients distinct advantages.

In the courtroom, CDLA combines their strong negotiation skills with persuasive strategy. They open up a case with straightforward discussions with prosecutors that often results in withdrawal of the charges. Similarly, at the time of hearing, they deliver clear and concise opening statements and summaries. This helps the judges quickly grasp the key issues, which leads to desired outcomes in their clients' cases.

Stay Ahead in the Curve

Criminal Law is subjected to constant changes and updates. CDLA strives to remain at the forefront of the industry by constantly spending time to learn new trends in Criminal Law.

“Being a very passionate criminal defence lawyer, I enjoy learning the law and this knowledge allows me to apply the legal knowledge to my client's cases and share my valuable insight with other lawyers both within and outside the practice. I work on my craft of learning and revising every day which compounds over the years,” Jimmy added.

Notable Accomplishments of CDLA

Jimmy Singh at Criminal Defence Lawyers Australia® takes pride in being able to impact the community in a positive way. He believes that his biggest achievement is bridging the gap between justice and the community.

“My biggest accomplishment as a criminal defence lawyer is to have trained and guided a handful of lawyers working within CDLA to be able to provide high-quality legal representations for our clients at a larger scale than I ever could as one person. This allows us to provide greater access to justice to the community.”

Jimmy highlighted one of his recent achievements, where he and his renowned team successfully withdrew five serious criminal charges against a doctor, which otherwise might have led to the loss of his practice. With their strong negotiation skills, backed up by experience with countless plea deals over the last 15 years, all charges against the doctor were withdrawn and dismissed.

“My doctor client was able to continue providing his valuable medical services to the community through his medical practice that has been running for many years already.”

Dealing with Criminal Matters?

Jimmy provides valuable advice for his audience who are dealing with criminal charges in Sydney. He addresses the common pitfall that people with criminal charges might fall into—agreeing to provide police with an official recorded interview before seeking legal advice. He emphasises the importance of the 'Right to Silence' which protects anyone who is suspected of a crime against self-incrimination.

"A person suspected of a crime by police can lawfully refuse to talk about the allegation without any adverse inferences being drawn from it," Jimmy stated for a better understanding for their clients.
