

Central Florida Collaborative Divorce Attorneys Featured On The Respectful Divorce Podcast

Divorce With Respect Week® is a nationwide initiative from March 3-9, 2025 to educate couples about options for divorce like the Collaborative Divorce process.

FL, UNITED STATES, February 17, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Members of Central Florida Collaborative Divorce Wendy Aikin and Paul Shafranski were recent guests on The Respectful Divorce podcast discussing the value of the no-court Collaborative Divorce process and the upcoming Divorce With Respect Week® initiative. The Respectful Divorce Podcast features divorce professionals to explore the different divorce options for untangling the knot.

This will be the 4th annual Divorce With Respect Week®

“When I found out about the Collaborative Divorce process I converted my firm to a collaborative practice because I was tired of litigation, it didn't work for families, it didn't fit, it didn't feel right and it certainly didn't help children,” said Aikin “It wasn't building a better future with a reconfigured family for these folks, so we committed to change over to the Collaborative Divorce process which is much more humane and kind.”

Litigation is a very one size fits all approach for clients and attorneys, while Collaborative Divorce can be tailored to the needs of the clients”

Collaborative Divorce is an option that commits to keeping the divorce out of court.

“In a collaborative case, you can have deeper conversations and problem solve issues in the divorce that you can't get with litigation,” said Shafranski. “Litigation is a very one size fits all approach for clients and attorneys, while Collaborative Divorce can be tailored to the needs of the clients.”
