

College Housing Made Simple: Semester Sublet Launches to Solve the One-Semester Housing Dilemma

Whether you are studying abroad, relocating for an internship, or graduating early. Semester Sublet (semestersublet.com) is here to change that.

NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES,

-- For many college students, securing short-term housing can be both expensive and stressful—whether they're studying abroad, relocating for an internship, or graduating early. Semester Sublet (semestersublet.com) is launched to change that.

Founded by entrepreneur Nancy Schwartz, Semester Sublet was created to help students save thousands of dollars while making short-term housing easier to find. The platform connects students looking for sublets with those offering them, eliminating the need for long-term leases or costly rental options.

A Smarter Way to Find Student Housing.

Instead of dealing with expensive broker fees, rigid rental contracts, or limited availability, students can now browse listings that fit their academic schedules, budgets, and housing preferences. With an easy-to-use interface, Semester Sublet allows students to search by university, rental duration, price, and amenities, making the process quick and stress-free.

"Our mission is simple—to solve the one-semester housing dilemma and give students an affordable, flexible housing solution," said Nancy Schwartz, founder of Semester Sublet. "Whether they need a place for a semester abroad, an internship, or an early graduation move, Semester Sublet makes it easier to find housing without unnecessary costs or complications.”

Saving Money and Reducing Stress for Students

Semester Sublet provides a dedicated platform built specifically for student housing, allowing users to find short-term rentals without the financial burden of traditional leases. Instead of struggling to find last-minute accommodations, students can access housing solutions that fit their needs, timeline, and budget—all in one place.

Students who have used the platform are already seeing the benefits. "I spent weeks trying to find a short-term lease for my internship," said Vicky, a junior at NYU. "If Semester Sublet had been around sooner, it would have saved me so much time, stress, and money."

Expanding Housing Opportunities Nationwide

As demand for flexible student housing continues to rise, Semester Sublet is growing to meet student needs. Future plans include the launch of a mobile app and partnerships with universities to further integrate the platform into academic communities.

For students looking for affordable, short-term housing, Semester Sublet is now live and accepting listings nationwide. Visit semestersublet.com to find or list a sublet today.
