About Brigadier General (ret) Dick Miller:

Since retiring in 2012 from the Military and his Civilian Job as a Senior Vice President of an Electronics company based in Detroit, General Miller has dedicated his time and energy toward Veteran health care issues, Veteran employment, and creating opportunities for Veteran businesses.

He served as the Deputy Commanding General of the 38th Infantry Division of the Indiana National Guard until his retirement in 2012, completing 33 years of service as an Infantryman. A combat veteran with service in Afghanistan, he served as the senior military advisor to the Corps commander of the Afghan Army and commanded all Embedded Tactical Trainers based in Kandahar.

Currently, General Miller is the President of the National Veteran Business Development Council (NVBDC), which provides certification for veteran-owned businesses. Under his leadership, NVBDC has certified over 3,000 veteran-owned businesses, allowing them to engage with over 180 major corporations in the United States.

He has also been involved in the establishment of the Eisenhower Veteran Care Project at Selfridge Air National Guard Base. Sanctioned and approved by the Air Force, National Guard, and supported by state and local entities, the project was created to provide PTSD and TBI treatment for both male and female veterans.

Additionally, he serves as the Executive Vice President of the 2nd Region, Association of the United States Army, where he coordinates activities for the 104,000 members in the region, focusing on providing support and services for soldiers and their families.
