Based on grade, the global guar gum market is divided into food, pharmaceutical, and industrial. Food grade is applied in such products as baked goods and sauces, whereas pharmaceutical grade is applied in drugs. Industrial grade is applied in textiles, paper manufacturing, and oil and gas drilling.

By industry vertical, the global guar gum market is segmented into oil and gas, food and beverage, pharmaceutical, cosmetics, mining, and others. The oil and gas sector makes extensive use of guar gum in drilling activities, while the food and beverages industry applies it as a stabilizer and thickener. Guar gum serves as a binder and disintegrant in pharmaceuticals, and the cosmetics sector applies it due to its stabilizing and thickening capabilities. The mining activities also make use of guar gum, and the "others" category includes a variety of uses, such as textiles, paper production, and other chemical processes.

Based on function, the market is bifurcated into thickening agents, stabilizing agents, binders, diction reducers, and others. As a thickener, it increases the viscosity of foods, cosmetics, and industrial fluids. It stops separation in blends due to its stabilizing action, and its binding action keeps ingredients attached. In addition, guar gum also serves as a friction reducer in uses such as hydraulic fracturing, and the "others" category includes additional activities such as its use as a suspending agent or in film formation.

Geographically, the North American region is projected to hold a noteworthy market share throughout the forecast period. The presence of a booming oil and gas industry and the presence of vast cosmetics and pharmaceutical manufacturing companies in the region further supplement its significant share of the global guar gum market during the next five years.

As a part of the report, the major players operating in the global guar gum market that have been covered are Cargill, Incorporated, Ingredion, Agro Gums, DABUR INDIA LIMITED, Rama Gum Industries (India) Ltd, Lucid Colloids Ltd and Ashland among others.
