The 1000 Miglia is a historic endurance race that has been a cornerstone of Italian automotive culture since 1927.

The race showcases vintage and classic cars driving 1,000 miles on public roads through Italy's cities and countryside. Over the years, it has expanded with recreations in Japan, China, the United Arab Emirates and beyond. Now, for the first time, this Italian tradition is making its way to Florida. The race will start in Coral Gables, where entrants will get a stamp check from the Italian Consulate before heading to Naples, Venice, Tampa, and then back to Miami.
