Our goal is always to improve the flight experience by delivering real value that far exceeds our cost”

Jeffrey Reis, CEO

“Properly managing fractional and similar contracts can be challenging, with fine print terms and conditions that work against flyers, as well as last-minute changes and delays that can quickly derail plans,” said Jeffrey Reis, CEO. “Our focus is on advocating for our clients as a dedicated representative to help maximize their time and ensure a smoother experience that includes accurate billing for every flight they take.”

To assist with addressing issues that can affect a client flight, the company has developed a proprietary AI-based operations system that draws on multiple data sources in real-time to predict potential delays before they occur, allowing clients to adjust their plans proactively.

“Our dedicated operations team constantly monitors multiple trip parameters to keep clients proactively informed and provide solution options, often even before a problem occurs,” added Reis. “Our goal is always to improve the flight experience by delivering real value that far exceeds our cost, and it’s why we offer a money back guarantee.”

In addition to flight and billing management, the company also assists with negotiating new flight provider agreements to ensure clients receive the best terms and value every time.
