ORLANDO, FL, UNITED STATES, February 25, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Flow Shooting Academy, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit dedicated to youth basketball development, is expanding its elite training camps to new cities across the United States and internationally in 2025. With a mission to provide free, high-level shooting instruction, mentorship, and life skills training, the academy is taking its transformative experience beyond Orlando now including Miami, Boston and Costa Rica this summer.

“Flow Shooting Academy isn’t just about basketball—it’s about providing high-level shooting instruction, mentorship, and opportunities for every kid, regardless of their background,” said Jay Henderson,

Founder of Flow Shooting Academy. “We are committed to ensuring that every young athlete has access to the resources they need to develop on and off the court.”

Flow Shooting Academy goes beyond traditional basketball training by offering a comprehensive development program that incorporates elite shooting instruction, mental health and leadership development, nutrition and injury prevention, and technology and analytics integration which introduces players to modern training techniques that enhance game performance and long-term skill development.

“Flow Shooting Academy is unique because our camps are 100% free, ensuring every kid has access to high-level shooting instruction,” added Henderson. “But it's more than just basketball—we teach mental health, nutrition, and technology to help kids grow on and off the court.”

As a 100% nonprofit organization, Flow Shooting Academy is committed to breaking barriers in youth sports by ensuring financial limitations do not prevent young athletes from receiving top-tier training. The academy actively seeks corporate sponsors, community partners, and philanthropic donors to support its mission of providing free, high-quality camps to young players.
