Planet TV Studios is thrilled to welcome back Gina Grad, a powerhouse in broadcasting. Hailing from Los Angeles, Gina isn't just a podcast host and radio dynamo—she's also a celebrated author. You might remember her from the Adam Carolla Show, a podcast that shattered records by dominating the Guinness World Records for most downloaded episodes. With high-profile stints at KFI 640 AM and a leading morning slot on 100.3 FM, she's now steering "The Bryan and Gina Show, The Official Podcast of LA Magazine." And if that wasn't enough, Gina's penned the inspiring children's book "My Extra Mom," a heartfelt guide that helps kids and stepparents navigate the beautiful complexities of blended families.

For years, MonDak Portables has set the standard in an industry that is often overlooked yet critical to global infrastructure. Whether facilitating sanitation for remote construction sites, supporting disaster-stricken communities, or enhancing large-scale event logistics, the company has built a reputation for delivering reliability where it matters most. With a focus on innovation and environmental responsibility, MonDak Portables has redefined how modern societies manage mobile sanitation and temporary shelter solutions.

This New Frontiers episode will explore MonDak Portables' contributions to emergency response efforts worldwide. From providing critical infrastructure during natural disasters to supporting public health initiatives in crisis zones, the company's forward-thinking approach has positioned it as an indispensable player in the realm of disaster relief and recovery. Their custom-built mobile solutions offer governments and aid organizations a rapid deployment advantage, ensuring access to sanitation and temporary shelter when every second counts.
