Collect with Respect”

“I've worked directly with David Lippman for years and I appreciate his firm and how they handle collection work.

This is one of the few collection firms that will seek a fair resolution/settlement based on the individual's circumstances. Other firms use strict percentage guidelines, independent of the debtor's financial situation. Logically, this makes trying to settle a debt pointless. So on a bright note, if you're going to get sued for consumer debt, it might as well be with David's firm. “ says Matthew Foley

"The recovery landscape has become increasingly complex, particularly in areas like subrogation where we're seeing unprecedented challenges in claims processing and liability assessment," said David Lippman.

"Our goal is to maximize recovery potential for our clients and also assist debtors in their road to recovery”

Where other debt collection companies fail, Lippman Recupero takes a different approach when it comes to recovering debts by giving the debtor the benefit of the doubt and helping them along the way. Many debt collection companies have rigid and hostile collection practices that only deter debtors from making payments and getting the matter settled.

The firm has strengthened its capabilities across commercial debt collection, retail debt collection, credit union collections, auto insurance subrogation, landlord eviction services, property damage subrogation and much more.
