As infertility is affecting 1 in 3 women and it comes with the emotional and financial toll of treatments like IVF. This platform is unique as it provides accurate information for every stage of your fertility journey.

Founder's Story: From Struggle to Solution

Diana, co-founder of Amelia Genesis, and her husband spent over ten years thinking starting a family would be easy. “We were young, healthy, and assumed timing was on our side,” she recalls. When fertility challenges began, doctors dismissed their concerns, saying they had “plenty of time.”. They rightfully started to panic. After multiple failed IVF cycles and no clear diagnosis, Diana took matters into her own hands. She engrossed herself in fertility research and collaborated with a lot of specialists. She incorporated approaches like acupuncture and targeted supplements in her courses.

“Amelia Genesis was born out of our darkest moments” Diana explains. “We created this platform so no one else has to navigate this journey alone.” And her persistence paid off when Diana and her husband welcomed their daughter, Amelia. She was the one who inspired the startup’s name and mission.

A New Approach to Fertility Support

Amelia Genesis is not a medical clinic; instead, it brings a new and fresh approach to the table with their personalized plans. These plans offer nutrition guidance, stress management techniques, and personalized supplement recommendations. For those needing medical help, the platform connects them with trusted fertility clinics or OB/GYNs. It ensures seamless transitions to the next steps under the correct guidance.

The Amelia Genesis fertility coaching program provides courses and one-on-one sessions on cycle tracking, hormones, and preconception health. It's a game changer. And that's not all! Subscribers receive 24/7 support, ensuring guidance for those with conditions like PCOS or endometriosis.

Bridging the Gap Between Knowledge and Action

"Our mission is to empower people with the tools they need to take control of their fertility health," says Diana. The main purpose of this startup is to guide, educate, and support people in their fertility journey.

The platform follows evidence-based practices and collaborates with experts to tackle the root causes of infertility. Users get personalized assessments to improve areas like diet and stress management. To take things one step ahead, they also provide resources on male fertility and sperm health. And lastly, they offer great advice to help improve your daily lifestyle and reach your fertility goals more easily.
