The plasma feed market is anticipated to grow at a CAGR of 3.14% from US$3.014 billion in 2025 to US$3.518 billion by 2030.

NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, February 28, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- According to a new study published by Knowledge Sourcing Intelligence, plasma feed market is projected to grow at a CAGR of 3.14% and is expected to reach US$3.518 billion by 2030.

Plasma feed is a kind of animal feed that is valuable for its rich source of nutrients as well as protein for building and repairing muscles, immunoglobins for boosting the immune system in young animals, and amino acids for growth, among others. It is prepared with whole blood from which plasma is separated through centrifuge it from cells. It is then treated with anticoagulants and spray dried; the blood is collected from healthy animals which are slaughtered for consumption by humans. Plasma feed is helpful for animals to upgrade feed efficiency, decrease dependence on antibiotics, and enhance gut health in animals.

The plasma feed market based on source is divided into porcine, bovine, and others. The porcine segment is expected to have a major market share which is the presence of valuable nutrients such as protein, essential amino acids content as well as immunoglobins. These ingredients provide positive effect than an average daily feed as they lead to improving the animal's immune system and growth with the overall health of animals. It will witness continuous growth in demand as the requirement for high-quality and natural animal feed increases.

By application, the plasma feed market can be classified into swine-feed, pet-feed, aqua-feed, and others. The swine feed segment is significant as plasma feed benefits in improving the growth performance and gut health of piglets and is driven by the increasing husbandry of healthy pigs for human consumption. The pet-feed is witnessing an increase due to the rise in the humanization of pets by consumers as well as the demand for high-quality and nutritious pet feed by their owners. Meanwhile, aqua feed is also demanding plasma feed to enhance the health and growth of the farmed shrimp and fish.

Based on geography, the Asia Pacific region of the plasma feed market is growing significantly. This is due to a rise in the production of livestock, growing awareness of animal nutrition, and a rise in pet ownership across the region. Countries such as China, Thailand, and India are significant producers of livestock like poultry, pork, and aquaculture husbandry which is leading to a rise in demand for high-quality animal feeds like plasma feed. There is a rise in the adoption of healthy and antibiotic-free feed ingredients like plasma feed among the region due to increasing awareness of animal nutrients and health concerns leading to substantial expansion in the regional market during the projected period.
