companies and travel destinations from around the world, to ocean-inspired jewelry and art — providing scuba enthusiasts with the latest in equipment and knowledge, as well as the inspiration to seek out their next dive adventure.

Southern California is home to one of the largest concentrations of divers in North America, and it is always a pleasure to present to them opportunities to learn more about what is under the waves.”

Scuba Show producer, Mark Young.

For the estimated 8,000 attendees, there's plenty to see and do. Throughout the weekend, attendees can expect product demonstrations, travel specials, over 70 seminars, activities for children, “real” mermaids, and the chance to prove their prowess in riding a mechanical bucking great white shark. Marine films are screened throughout the weekend in a 360° enclosed theater, immersing viewers in a “beneath the sea” experience. Both adults and kids are invited to help paint a colorful giant seascape mural. A regular draw for attendees, all ticket holders have the opportunity to take home a piece of over $50,000 in gifts and prizes.

For those new to diving, first-timers are invited to don full scuba gear and try their hand at diving in a heated 15,000-gallon pool on the exhibit hall floor, under the supervision of experienced instructors.

The show is truly a “deep dive” into the educational aspects of the sport and features dozens of seminars on various specialized topics such as marine environments, foreign destinations, history, underwater photography, diving physiology, ocean weather forecasting, marine conservation, and more. A sampling of this year’s seminars includes The Strange Creatures of the Sand, Mistakes Divers Make, Secrets of the Coral Reef, Traveling Safely to Remote Destinations, and Reaping Remarkable Rewards from Underwater California, among many, many others.

The much-anticipated Saturday night party for attendees and vendors takes place at The Cove, an undersea-themed venue at the Convention Center. Starting right after the show closes, it will feature live entertainment, food trucks, a cash bar, a fundraising raffle and silent auction, and the presentation of the California Scuba Service Award.

“Southern California is home to one of the largest concentrations of divers in North America,” said Scuba Show producer, Mark Young. “It is always a pleasure to engage with both the local and broader western diving community and to present them with opportunities to learn more about what is under the waves and the sport we are so passionate about. Whether you are an experienced diver or want to know more about the sport, the Scuba Show welcomes you to explore the thrilling world of scuba diving.”

The 2025 Scuba Show will take place on Saturday, May 31 from 9:30 AM to 6 PM and Sunday,
