Understanding the Difference: Immigration Consultant vs. Immigration Attorney

One of the most common questions answered on Immigration-Consultant-California.com is the difference between an immigration consultant and an immigration attorney. While an attorney can provide legal representation and advice, an immigration consultant or paralegal assists with document-related tasks but cannot offer legal counsel or legal advice. The website breaks down these distinctions to help users make informed decisions.

“Our goal is to provide clarity and accessibility to individuals who need assistance with immigration paperwork, Shafi Afridi, a Registered and Bonded Immigration Consultant in California” We understand the challenges of navigating the immigration process, and our website serves as a trusted resource for those seeking document assistance services without the high costs of legal representation.”
