The streaming space is exactly where I want to be right now. I feel authenticity is one of the most coveted and attractive qualities for any on-air personality in 2025.”

James Tully

After years of delivering the news, these two Emmy winners are stepping out from behind the desk to explore the stories behind the headlines. Candid. Authentic. Unexpected. That's Off the Set. Every episode brings interesting guests, surprising confessions, and bold discussions. It's the real talk we all need, without the filter.

"The streaming space is exactly where I want to be right now," said Tully. "I feel authenticity is one of the most coveted and attractive qualities for any on-air personality in 2025. The goal of 'Off the Set' is to give you something to think about as you start your day, and it's exactly the kind of show Sarina and I have always wanted to do."

"We've told so many stories over the years, but there's always more beneath the surface," added Fazan. "This is our chance to have real conversations, share behind-the-scenes moments, and connect in a way we weren't able to do in a newsroom."
