What Factors Are Driving Growth in the Carvykti Market?

The increasing burden of cancer is one of the primary forces behind the expansion of the Carvykti market. Cancer cases are rising due to factors such as an aging population, lifestyle changes, environmental risks, and improved early detection methods.

Carvykti, a CAR T-cell therapy, has emerged as a promising solution for patients with relapsed or refractory multiple myeloma, providing a targeted treatment approach where other options are limited. According to projections from the National Cancer Institute, the number of cancer survivors in the U.S. is expected to rise from 18.1 million in January 2022 to approximately 22.5 million by 2032.
