

The Maple Staple Brings Fresh Perspectives at the Prestigious London Book Fair 2025

Bringing a diverse lineup of books, The Maple Staple continues to support independent authors on an international stage.

TORONTO, ONTARIO, CANADA, March 5, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Maple Staple will once again be part of the London Book Fair (LBF), a key event in the publishing industry that connects authors, publishers, and literary professionals worldwide. Scheduled for March 11-13, 2025 at Olympia London, the fair provides a space for global networking and book discovery.

Exhibiting at Stand 6G40, The Maple Staple will feature over 160 books across multiple genres, highlighting fresh perspectives and compelling narratives. This participation reinforces its dedication to amplifying independent voices and engaging with the wider literary community.

Nicholas Licausi's "The Medical Project" introduces readers to John and Kate Colombo, two visionaries determined to revolutionize the medical industry. Their ambitious effort to develop a groundbreaking medical computer quickly turns into a high-stakes battle as powerful forces attempt to stop them, fearing the disruption of the status quo. Blending fiction with real-world technological possibilities, Licausi crafts a gripping narrative that explores the potential of medical advancements to save lives—including those lost due to systemic failures.

In “The U.S. Leadership Program”, John and Kate’s success in transforming healthcare earns them a place in a pioneering government initiative, granting them the authority to lead projects aimed at reshaping society. As they navigate political complexities and global challenges, their journey highlights the intersection of technology, leadership, and the pursuit of progress. With compelling storytelling and insightful commentary, Licausi presents a thought-provoking exploration of innovation and governance.

Expanding beyond Earth, “The Leaders and the Space Project” follows John and Kate as they take their expertise beyond the planet, applying their knowledge to assist civilizations across the universe. Their interstellar missions uncover new opportunities for cooperation between worlds, raising profound questions about the future of humanity. In this third installment, Licausi elevates his themes of ingenuity and resilience to a cosmic scale, reinforcing the transformative power of technology when used for the greater good.

Nicholas Licausi, a retired aerospace engineer, programmer, and executive, turned to writing as a means of exploring groundbreaking ideas that could drive real-world progress. Inspired by personal loss, his books weave fiction with thought-provoking concepts, offering readers an immersive, cinematic experience. His work has garnered interest for adaptation, and with a fifth book on the horizon, his series continues to push the boundaries of imagination and innovation.

World War III - It Started with EMP

In “World War III - It Started with EMP”, author Albert L. Clark presents a gripping military novel rooted in real-world research and strategic foresight.

Originally based on a 1986 Air War College study, the book explores the devastating impact of an electromagnetic pulse attack and its role in global conflict. Though fictional, the story draws from Clark’s firsthand involvement in war games and defense planning, offering a chilling look at potential future warfare.

Celtic Betrayal

Albert L. Clark is a retired U.S. Air Force lieutenant colonel with decades of experience in munitions logistics, foreign military sales, and defense research. He played a role in the development of key military technologies, including remotely piloted drones and GPS, and has worked with U.S. presidents and top defense officials. In retirement, he continues to write, blending military expertise with compelling storytelling.

Eric Steven Griesel’s “Celtic Betrayal” is a gripping historical fiction novel that spans five generations of the Kerrigan family, from their 1847 migration from Ireland to their rise as a powerful business empire in the United States.

Over the years, the Kerrigans have overcome countless obstacles, but now, a devastating act of betrayal threatens to unravel both their family bonds and financial legacy, putting everything they’ve built at risk.

Griesel is a Houston-based attorney and former member of the U.S. Navy Judge Advocate General's Corps. A graduate of the University of Memphis Law School, he specializes in legal and HR matters. He and his wife, Judy Lynn, are devoted Christ followers and lifelong Houston Astros fans. Together, they share a love for storytelling and faith, while his three daughters—Jennifer, KyMBERly, and Stephanie—remain his biggest supporters.

Through these titles and by participating in the London Book Fair, The Maple Staple continues to champion independent publishing, providing authors with greater exposure and fostering new literary connections.

Visitors can explore these books in person at Stand 6G40 at Olympia London from March 11–13, 2025. They are also available through The Maple Staple’s website and exhibitor profile, as well as for purchase on Amazon and other major retailers.
