What's Driving the Growth of the Eylea HD Market?

The rising prevalence of eye disorders is a major factor fueling market expansion. Conditions such as cataracts, glaucoma, diabetic retinopathy, and macular degeneration are becoming more common due to increased screen time, environmental influences, genetic predisposition, and aging populations.

Eylea HD (aflibercept injection 8 mg) is a higher-dose formulation of Eylea (aflibercept 2 mg), used to treat retinal conditions related to abnormal blood vessel growth and fluid leakage. An example of the increasing prevalence of eye conditions comes from the World Health Organization (WHO), which reported that the prevalence of childhood myopia over the last 12 years up to 2022 stood at 5.23%, with a higher occurrence in females (4.90%) compared to males (3.94%). This rising burden of eye diseases is driving demand for Eylea HD treatments.
