How Does Hepatitis B Prevalence Influence the Growth of the Hepagam B Market?

The increasing global prevalence of hepatitis B is a major driver of the Hepagam B market. Hepatitis B is a liver infection caused by the hepatitis B virus (HBV), which can lead to chronic disease, cirrhosis, or liver cancer. The rising infection rates are attributed to limited vaccine coverage, higher transmission among high-risk populations, and lack of awareness regarding preventive measures.

HepaGam B plays a crucial role in providing passive immunity to individuals exposed to HBV, effectively reducing the risk of infection progression.

Who Are the Leading Players in the Hepagam B Market?

The Hepagam B market is dominated by key pharmaceutical companies, including:

- Kamada Ltd.
- Kibiopharma Inc.
- Emergent BioSolutions Inc.

These industry leaders have played a pivotal role in driving innovation, expanding market reach, and improving treatment availability.

What Are the Emerging Trends in the Hepagam B Market?

One significant trend in the market is the expansion of plasma collection centers, which play a crucial role in producing immunoglobulins for hepatitis B treatment.

For instance, in September 2024, Kamada Limited, an Israel-based biopharmaceutical company, launched a new plasma collection center in Houston, Texas. This 12,000-square-foot facility supports over 50 donor beds and is expected to collect approximately 50,000 liters of plasma annually, significantly enhancing supply capacity.

How Is the Hepagam B Market Segmented?

The market can be categorized as follows:

- By Product Type:
 - o Immunoglobulin Preparations

- o Vaccines
- o Antiviral Therapies
 - By Indication:
 - o Post-Exposure Prophylaxis
 - o Chronic Hepatitis B Treatment
 - By Distribution Channel:
 - o Hospital Pharmacies
 - o Retail Pharmacies
 - o Online Pharmacies

Which Regions Lead the Hepagam B Market?
