What Drives the Growth of the Inflectra Market?

The increasing prevalence of autoimmune diseases has been a significant factor driving the demand for Inflectra. Contributing factors such as dietary changes, environmental pollution, lifestyle habits, and climate change have led to a surge in these conditions. Autoimmune diseases occur when the immune system mistakenly attacks healthy cells, causing inflammation and damage to organs and tissues.

The need for effective treatment options has risen, benefitting the Inflectra market as patients seek therapies for conditions like rheumatoid arthritis and Crohn's disease. For example, the IBD Clinical and Research Centre in Canada reported that as of September 2023, over 320,000 Canadians were living with inflammatory bowel disease (IBD), with a prevalence of 825 per 100,000 people. The condition is expected to grow at a rate of 2.44% annually, potentially affecting around 470,000 individuals or 1.1% of the Canadian population by 2035. This rising prevalence underscores the growing demand for Inflectra treatments.

Who Are the Leading Companies in the Inflectra Market?

The Inflectra market is led by several key industry players, with Celltrion Inc. being a major contributor. These companies drive market growth through continuous innovation and strategic initiatives.

What Are the Emerging Trends in the Inflectra Market?

Several trends are shaping the Inflectra market, particularly the development of advanced biosimilars. One notable innovation is the introduction of subcutaneous infliximab biosimilars, which offer a more convenient maintenance treatment option for patients with inflammatory bowel disease.

In October 2023, Celltrion USA, a subsidiary of Celltrion, secured FDA approval for ZYMFENTRA (infliximab-dyyb). This approval marked the first and only subcutaneous formulation of infliximab designed for the maintenance treatment of moderate-to-severe Crohn's disease (CD) and ulcerative colitis (UC) in adults. This innovation enhances treatment accessibility and convenience for patients with autoimmune conditions.
