Innovation Foundation, in partnership with Taconic Innovations' Day Habilitation participants, has made a generous donation of warm clothing to Hudson River Housing and the Children's Closet in Poughkeepsie, NY. This initiative aims to provide essential winter gear to individuals and families in need, ensuring they stay warm during the cold months.

Participants from the Taconic Innovations' Day Habilitation program played a vital role in organizing and delivering the clothing, embracing the foundation's mission of fostering community involvement and support. Their efforts highlight the importance of inclusion and empowerment, showcasing how individuals with disabilities contribute meaningfully to their communities.

"We are proud to support Hudson River Housing and the Children's Closet with these donations," said Mathias Oni-Eseleh Jr., a representative of the Taconic Innovation Foundation. "Through this initiative, we provide much-needed clothing and promote the spirit of giving and community engagement among our Day Hab participants."

Hudson River Housing and the Children's Closet serve as crucial resources for individuals and families experiencing hardship, offering shelter, clothing, and support services. This donation reflects the Taconic Innovation Foundation's ongoing commitment to making a positive impact in the Hudson Valley.
