Ajay Mehta, CEO of IBN Technologies, states: "Outsourced bookkeeping is more than a cost-cutting strategy; it's a business enabler that drives efficiency and refines focus on core objectives."

Further, research suggests that outsourced bookkeeping offers several benefits, making it a strategic choice for SMEs. Cost savings are a primary advantage, with outsourced accounting services in India offering lower labor costs, reducing expenses compared to hiring in-house staff. Additionally, they provide access to specialized expertise, with firms employing professionals skilled in financial management and updated on regulatory changes, ensuring compliance with New York state laws.

Scalability is another critical benefit, allowing businesses to adjust support levels as financial needs evolve without the burden of hiring or laying off staff. This flexibility is particularly valuable for SMEs in New York, where economic conditions may fluctuate. Moreover, outsourcing enables businesses to focus on core competencies, freeing internal teams to concentrate on growth initiatives like product innovation and customer engagement, as noted in the press release.
