Cancer, characterized by abnormal cell growth, is becoming increasingly prevalent due to several contributing factors:

- Aging populations, leading to a higher cancer burden
- Unhealthy lifestyles, including poor diet and sedentary habits
- Environmental influences, increasing cancer risk factors

Pegfilgrastim biosimilars, including Neulasta, are instrumental in preventing chemotherapy-induced neutropenia by stimulating white blood cell production and reducing infection risks.

Projections from the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare indicate that:

- By 2024, Australia will record approximately 169,000 new cancer diagnoses
- By 2034, this number is expected to rise to 209,000 cases
