

Watch The European's interview with Rinad El-Rabaa of iFuel

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, March 11, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- 2025 is expected to be a promising year for the global aviation industry, with experts predicting its value could soar to $1 trillion, up from $896 billion in 2023. This optimistic forecast bodes well for companies already established in the sector, such as the award-winning iFuel. Founded in 2020, iFuel initially focused on supplying jet fuel but has since transformed into a global provider of comprehensive aviation services. So, how did this evolution occur?

The driving force behind iFuel's success is its owner, CEO, and founder, Rinad El-Rabaa.

Juliette Foster spoke to him to learn more.
