

Kristen Cederlind, OT to Speak at SSHA 47th Annual Symposium 2025 in Tempe, Arizona

DULUTH, MN, UNITED STATES, March 25, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- WorkWell Prevention & Care, a leader in musculoskeletal (MSK) health programs, is proud to announce that Kristen Cederlind, OT, Director of Clinical Services, will be a featured speaker at the SSHA 47th Annual Symposium, taking place April 14-17, 2025, at the Omni Tempe Hotel in Tempe, Arizona.

Musculoskeletal Care for Organizations

The SSHA Annual Symposium, hosted by the Semiconductor Environmental, Safety & Health Association (SSHA), is the premier event for environmental, safety, and health (ESH) professionals in the high-technology sector. This year's symposium will bring together industry leaders, innovators, and experts to discuss cutting-edge solutions, emerging technologies, and best practices in ESH for the semiconductor and related industries.

Kristen will present on "Beyond Band-Aids: Building Sustainable Ergonomic Solutions Through Participation", sharing insights from her extensive experience in occupational health. The presentation is scheduled for April 15, 2025 from 10:30 a.m. – 11:15 a.m., offering attendees a unique opportunity to explore ergonomic options to enhance their safety programs.

"We are thrilled to have Kristen represent WorkWell at this informative event," said Karil Reibold, CEO. "Her expertise in occupational health aligns perfectly with SSHA's mission to advance safety, sustainability, and innovation in the high-tech industry. This is a fantastic opportunity to share our commitment to employee safety and injury prevention with a global audience of ESH professionals."
