

Caezik SF & Fantasy Offers a Unique Opportunity for a Fan to be Immortalized in Harry Turtledove's Latest Novel

Fans can enter a contest to be randomly selected to be born as a character in a new alternate history novel set in Los Angeles.

ROCKVILLE, MD, UNITED STATES, March 13, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Harry Turtledove, dubbed the "Master of Alternate History" by Publishers Weekly, and Caezik SF & Fantasy, invite fans to add themselves (or a loved one) to his latest novel, Powerless.

One lucky fan will be able to have their name (or a name of their choosing) written into the fabric of an alternate Los Angeles, a city reimagined and transformed as only Turtledove can. With no entry fee, this contest gives one fortunate fan a chance to have their name (or the name of a loved one) turned into a character in the new novel, "Powerless."

Fans can enter by filling out a simple form at:

=The Ultimate Collector's Set=

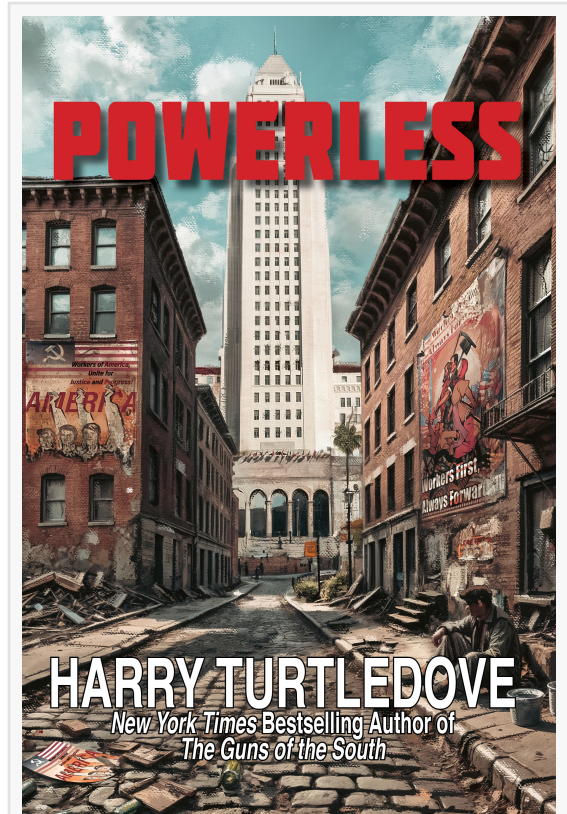

In addition to seeing their name immortalized in print, the winning fan will also receive five exclusive hardcover copies of "Powerless." Each copy will feature a personalized inscription on the dust jacket featuring a name you select.

For example,

"This edition has been specially printed for <YOUR NAME>."

"This edition has been specially printed for the Smith Family."

"This edition has been specially printed for my lovely wife, <NAME OF WIFE>."

=Book Description:=-

When does silent compliance with an oppressive regime become unbearable? For Charlie Simpkins, the manager of a small vegetable shop in Los Angeles' San Fernando Valley, part of the West Coast People's Democratic Republic, the breaking point comes when he is asked to display a meaningless propaganda poster in his shop window.

It is a seemingly insignificant act in a lifetime of obedience. But Charlie just can't bring himself to doing it. This minor act of defiance, however, show too much independent thinking on Charlie's part, setting off a chain of escalating consequences for Charlie and his wife and two children.

Release July 15, 2025 as a Hardcover and eBook.
