San Jose Chamber of Commerce to Host Power Hour Breakfast

Attendees will gain firsthand insights into Plug and Play's new AI Incubator as well as a cutting-edge net-zero Data Center and Housing proposal from partners Westbank Corp. and PG&E. Guests will learn how both projects will drive innovation, attract top talent, and solidify San Jose's position as a premier technology hub.

Plug and Play's AI Centers of Excellence aim to establish strategic hubs connecting local innovation with global opportunities. Tevin Panchal will discuss the new San Jose location, the first on the West Coast.

Andrew Jacobson (Westbank) and Teresa Alvarado (PG&E) will outline a cutting-edge project to integrate state-of-the-art data infrastructure with modern, energy-efficient housing and discuss how this initiative aligns with San Jose's sustainability goals, creates jobs, and enhances economic growth.

"Both Plug and Play's AI Center and the Westbank/PG&E partnership to utilize data center energy to fuel sustainable housing are the kind of transformative innovations Silicon Valley is known for," says Chamber President Leah Toeniskoetter. "Chamber members will get a sneak peek into these exciting opportunities."
