

Panorama Consulting Group Releases Latest Study of ERP Implementation Outcomes

DENVER, CO, UNITED STATES, March 25, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The 2025 ERP Report Examines ERP Implementation Outcomes and the Decisions That Led to Them

The business transformation and ERP consulting firm, Panorama Consulting Group, today released an independent report relevant to organizations considering an ERP implementation or digital transformation.

A web-commerce implementation that aligns with an organization's overarching digital strategy and business goals can drive customer engagement and revenue growth.”

Chris Devault, Senior Manager of Client Services at Panorama Consulting

One of the key findings was that the average project timeline decreased from 15.5 months to nine months since last year's report. The makeup of respondent organizations remained relatively consistent, so the decrease in timeline might be more related to high SaaS adoption.

“SaaS models enable businesses to cut deployment times by eliminating on-premise infrastructure setup and expediting system deployment in the cloud,” said Chris

Devault, Senior Manager of Client Services at Panorama. “However, organizations must still take the time to prioritize data readiness and ensure seamless system integration.”

The report also revealed that web-commerce leads in significant deployment, outpacing more hyped technologies, like AI and predictive analytics, in terms of widespread implementation.

“Organizations are prioritizing technologies that deliver more immediate and tangible business value,” said Devault. “A web-commerce implementation that aligns with an organization's overarching digital strategy and business goals can drive customer engagement and revenue growth.”
