Aeroluxe Expeditions Enters U.S. Market with High-Touch Private Jet Journeys—At a More Accessible Price

– Aeroluxe Expeditions announces its entry into the U.S. luxury travel market with its inaugural private jet journey, Colors of the World, departing March 2026.

Piet Visser, an acclaimed Private Jet Excursions Entrepreneur, brings his 30 years of experience designing highly personalized private jet expeditions in Europe for the first time to the United States. Aeroluxe is poised to offer an intimate, boutique alternative to traditional luxury travel operators at a more accessible price point.

Unlike large, commercial operators, Aeroluxe focuses on smaller groups, fully customized itineraries, and direct, hands-on service. By eliminating costly advertising overhead and layers of corporate expense, Aeroluxe delivers an exceptional private jet experience comparable to top-tier providers—without the inflated price.

The 22-day Colors of the World journey, limited to just 52 guests, offers an immersive exploration of some of the world's most remarkable destinations. Traveling aboard a VIP-configured Boeing 737-700, guests enjoy privileged access, private cultural encounters, and carefully curated experiences. Every detail is thoughtfully arranged to maximize time spent experiencing each destination rather than navigating travel logistics.

“We’re excited to introduce American travelers to Piet Visser’s renowned expertise in designing immersive, luxurious private jet journeys,” said Neeta Raja, CEO of Aeroluxe Expeditions U.S. “Our boutique approach allows us to deliver an experience comparable to the best in the industry—at a significantly more appealing price.”

“We redefine what travelers expect from private jet journeys,” Raja continued. “Our guests enjoy personalized attention, unmatched authenticity, and thoughtfully curated moments that larger companies simply can’t replicate—at a price that makes elite luxury truly accessible.”
