Elton Loud's Debut Feature Film, "A Thousand Faces", showcases the power of independent Black cinema, bringing a bold, black love story to Apple TV and Tubi TV.

OAKLAND, CA, UNITED STATES, April 3, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Elton Loud's highly anticipated surreal romantic drama, "A Thousand Faces," a bold and intimate exploration of Black love, is now streaming on Apple TV and Tubi TV.

Tension hangs in the air as Asha and Lucas anxiously wait for the police lockdown to end.

The surreal romance film "A Thousand Faces" is now available on streaming platforms, bringing a fresh take on the Black love story. Starring Julian Elijah Martinez ("Wu-Tang: An American Saga," HULU), Iman N. Milner ("House of Cards," Showtime) and Nzinga Imani ("All the Queen's Men," BET) the film tells the story of Asha and Lucas, two strangers whose one-night stand takes a turn when a sudden neighborhood lockdown traps them together. As danger looms outside, they must confront their pasts and decide if love can emerge from the chaos of the night.

Directed by Elton Loud (Netflix's "Last Chance U"), "A Thousand Faces" was a Sundance Labs finalist and received Film Independent's Fiscal Sponsorship. "In a film industry that often limits Black stories to themes of struggle, trauma and violence, 'A Thousand Faces' was an
