A rare opportunity to own a piece of country music history has arrived. The former mountain retreat of Dolly Parton is now for sale, offering an exclusive glimpse into the legendary artist's time in the quaint and artsy town of Idyllwild, California.

Recently owned by Dolly and her mother, this three-story, 1,800 sq. ft. mid-century chalet sits on a seasonal creek, surrounded by towering pines. Nearly all décor, collectibles, and furnishings remain just as Dolly left them, making this a truly one-of-a-kind listing for fans, historians, and homebuyers alike.

This home is the definition of woodsy elegance, blending warm wood-beamed ceilings, expansive windows, and a dramatic stone fireplace built around a massive granite boulder. The spacious loft—said to be one of Dolly's favorite places to write and play music—features three built-in beds, sleeping five.

"Owning a home with such a rich history is a rare opportunity," says listing agent Tiffany of Elevated Properties. "Dolly was a beloved part of the Idyllwild community, known for her warmth, generosity, and deep love for the mountains. This home truly reflects her spirit—welcoming, creative, and full of charm."
