"We are honored to be welcomed by the Macon community to offer our Transitions Divorce™ services," said Kelley Linn, Founder of Divorce Mediation Center. "Our advocacy goal is to help families avoid divorce court while protecting their finances."

Divorce can be a costly, difficult, and emotionally taxing experience, especially when children are involved. The traditional litigation process can result in escalating legal fees, drawn-out court hearings, and lasting emotional damage for all family members. In contrast, Divorce Mediation Center provides a holistic approach to divorce mediation, offering bundled services that include family financial analysis, mediation, coaching, and attorney legal support—all at a low, flat fee. This comprehensive package empowers couples to reach mutually beneficial agreements outside of the courtroom, saving them both time and significant financial resources.

By utilizing Divorce Mediation Center's services, Macon families can save an average of \$60,000 in divorce services or more compared to the costs associated with traditional divorce court proceedings. The center's experienced professionals work with each family to ensure an equitable division of assets, as well as offer ongoing support throughout the process.

Divorce Mediation Center's family-focused approach prioritizes the well-being of both parents and children, helping families avoid the trauma and stress often associated with divorce litigation. By offering a peaceful, cost-effective process, the center ensures that couples can move forward with their lives in a positive and healthy way.

"We are excited to bring our services to Macon and continue to help families in Georgia find peaceful resolutions to their divorces," said Linn. "Our team is dedicated to providing efficient, practical solutions that support families during a challenging time."
